

Course: COGNITIVIST STUDIES OF GRAMMAR AND LEXICON

Code: 2026003

Syllabus:

Studies on grammatical and lexical constructions (lexical classes, lexical formation, syntagmatic and sentence organization, grammatical relations, complex sentences, lexical and phrasal languages) according to the most relevant hypotheses in the field of Cognitive Linguistics - construction grammar in the different versions of Fillmore and Kay, Lakoff, Goldberg, and Langacker's cognitive grammar - all of which endorse to some degree the assumptions of the radially of linguistic categories, relevance of figurative processes in determining their outlines and the basic continuity between lexicon and grammar.
