3. On the Selection Process:

3.1. The selection process will consist of the following steps. 1) Assessment of the work schedule presented by the applicant (possible results are approved / non-approved; approved work schedules are worth 20 points). 2) Assessment of the degree of internationalization of the applicant's scientific production (maximum 30 points). 3) Assessment of the applicant's curriculum vitae (maximum 50 points).

3.2. Assessment of the work schedule takes into account the suitability of the research project and the research activities proposed, including the intended supervisor, scientific production, internationalization, methodological aspects, and viability, among others, and undergraduate and graduate teaching activities as well. Inadequacy of the activities proposed in the research project to the field of expertise and research interests of the intended supervisor may result in elimination. Approved work schedules are automatically worth 20 points in the final grade.

3.3. Assessment of the degree of internalization is of classificatory nature and will be based on the applicant's formal education (M.A., Ph.D. and/or post-doctorate abroad) and intellectual production (articles, book chapters and books) published in non-Portuguese languages from 2015 to 2018.

 3.3.1. Formal education is evaluated as follows: 100 points for full Ph.D. abroad (non-cumulative to other Ph.Ds.); 25 points for post-doctorate abroad; and 20 points for research time abroad during Ph.D. ("sandwich" Ph.D.; non-cumulative to other Ph.Ds.).

 3.3.2. Articles, book chapters and books published in any language other than Portuguese are evaluated according to CAPES' criteria for the research field of Psychology (http://www.capes.gov.br/component/content/article/44-avaliacao/4681psicologia). In case of articles, book chapters and books not yet evaluated by CAPES, the following criteria apply: 100 points for book; 30 points for book chapter (chapters in the same book cannot exceed 90 points); 100 points for articles in journals with H Index (Googles Scholar) above 30; 85 points for articles in journals with H Index between 20 and 30; 70 points for articles in journals with H Index between 10 and 19; 55 points for articles with H Index between 1 and 9; articles in journals with H Index below 1 do not qualify for evaluation.

 3.3.3. Only published works are to be considered.

 3.3.4. At any time during the selection process or after, the selection committee can require copies or other kinds of proof of the publications described. Non-compliance with the requirement will entail immediate exclusion from the process, in addition to other applicable legal measures.

 3.3.5. 30 points are to be given to the applicant with greater degree of internationalization, according to the criteria specified above. Points to be given to the remaining applicants are to be calculated by rule of three.

3.4 CV evaluation is of classificatory nature and exclusively based on the applicant's publications (articles, book chapters and books) from 2015 to 2018. These are to be evaluated according to CAPES' criteria for the research field of Psychology (http://www.capes.gov.br/component/content/article/44-avaliacao/4681psicologia). In case of articles, book chapters and books not yet evaluated by CAPES, the following criteria apply: 100 points for book; 30 points for book chapter (chapters in the same book cannot exceed 90 points); 100 points for articles in journals with H Index (Googles Scholar) above 30; 85 points for articles in journals with H Index between 20 and 30; 70 points for articles in journals with H Index between 10 and 19; 55 points for articles with H Index between 1 and 9; articles in journals with H Index below 1 do not qualify for evaluation.

 3.4.1. Only published works are to be considered.

 3.4.2. At any time during the selection process or after, the selection committee can require copies or other kinds of proof of the publications described. Non-compliance with the requirement will entail immediate exclusion from the process, in addition to other applicable legal measures.

 3.4.3. 50 points are to be given to the best evaluated CV, according to the criteria specified above. Points to be given to the remaining CVs are to be calculated by rule of three.

Further remarks:

a) The applicant with the best general final grade – including work schedule, internationalization and CV – will be granted the scholarship.
b) In case of two equal final grades, the applicant with the best performance in internationalization will be granted the scholarship. If equality persists, the applicant with the best CV will be granted the scholarship. If equality still persists, the older applicant will be granted the scholarship.
